

Blog site rules

Before you access this site, it's important that you understand a number of things. By accessing this site, you (whether you are a Committee Member or an invited participant) acknowledge that you understand and agree that:

1. Your acknowledgement: Each time you access this site, you (whether you are a Committee Member or an invited participant) acknowledge that you understand and agree to these rules.
2. Purpose of this site: This site is provided so Standards Australia Limited's (SA's) committee members and invited participants can discuss issues relating to knowledge management and its advancement, and SA's related projects.
3. SA not liable for posted material: SA cannot control the material that is posted on this site. You are responsible for ensuring that material you post is done so legally, and consistent with the ethics expected by SA. You acknowledge that SA is not liable for material that is posted on this site (such as comments, statements, materials or other contributions), and you will not hold SA so liable.
4. Committee Member Agreements: If you are a Committee Member of SA, you acknowledge that you are bound by SA's standard Committee Member Agreements. The terms of SA's standard Committee Member Agreements apply if there is any inconsistency between these rules and those terms.
5. You give us consent to use information: You give SA permission to reproduce, quote or use (either in original or modified form) any comments, statements, materials or other contributions you make on this site, including in any Australian and/or Australian and New Zealand Standards that may be developed as a result.